

If you weaken the do not call list, you would by law have to reimburse all the consumers that paid for the do not call list service.